COURMAYEUR

Possibly the most well-known of all Italian ski areas, Courmayeur lives up to the great reputation it has earned as a lively, but traditional, resort. Situated, as it is, at the head of the Aosta Valley in North West Italy, and only a few kilometres from the French border, it boasts some of the most stunning scenery in the Alps. The town is dominated by Europe's largest peak, Monte Bianco, and offers all that is best about Italian skiing. The town centre itself is cobbled and traffic-free, brimming with fascinating shops, bars and restaurants and, since the Aosta Valley is an autonomous taxfree region, the shopping is generally great value (especially for those top Italian designer names).

The ski area is accessed by a modern 135 person cable car which leaves from one end of the town or the gondola from Dolonne. The journey to Plan Chécrouit, from where all the ski lifts radiate, takes just over three minutes and, since all the ski equipment is stored on the mountain, this daily transfer is smooth and hassle free.

Courmayeur has over 100km of marked pistes, the majority of which are ideal for beginners and intermediates. The mountain ski area offers a wealth of blue and red runs – some gentle and wide open and others which are narrow pistes through the trees.
